Daniel Finnegan is five feet seven inches high, dark grey eyes and dark hair, fair complexion, has full face, thick lips, large nose, with pox-marks and freckles, has had first finger on right hand split on maide from the second joint to the end. His father, Timothy, resides in Cincinnati.

The Mysterious Marder of Wednesday Night -A Professor in a Femile Seminary standard Crawley had been found dead in the street near the Corner of Harriet and Main, together with a Diposition that he had been killed by a couple of females in whose company he had been seed a short time previous. The hour at which the homicide occurred prevented us from either learning or giving the name and character of the parties, but the facta, as developed before the Coroner's Jury yesterday morning, show the fallacy of what at that time we believed to be true. The particulars, so far as they have as yet been ascertained, throw no light upon the perpetrators of the act, and the testimony that has been elicited leaves the matter thus far still enshrouded in mystery.

It sppears that Henry T. Grawley, Professor of Mathematics in the Mt. Auburn Female Seminary, came to the city on Wednesday evening, to attend the concert at the Opera-house, in company with Miss Carrie Mensies, daughter of Dr. Mensies, of this city, and Miss Salile Vallette, the former a teacher and the latter a pupil at the institute.

At the close of the performance they visited the Chemerocas office, and spent the time time of the act, and spent the institute.

citement among his numerous friends and acquaintances.

The affair became more and more complicated as the examination of witnesses before the Coroner's Jury progressed, and about four o'clock the inquest was adjourned until Saturday morning. A number of our more prominent citizens have headed a subscription for a reward to be offered for the arrest of the homicide, and we carnestly hope our police may succeed in ferreting him out and bringing him to justice.

THE IRISH EMIGRATION TO AMERICA. THE IRISH EMIGRATION TO AMERICA.—A Cork (Ireland) paper of May 17 says:

Two river steamers left this city yesterday for Queenstown, crowded with persons who intend leaving for America by the screw steamships Glasgow and Nova Scotian, the former of which sails from this port to-day for New York and the latter for Quebec. They were mostly from the Queen's County and Kerry, and the great majority were young people. On being asked their reason for leaving the country, they replied that there were no opportunities for young persons of the farming class to get on here, and they considered it their best course to go away to a place where land was cheap and easily got. In most cases, their passages had been paid by relatives already in America. The tickets they had, freed them entirely by railway from their homes to this place, and from this to America.

A Log Used as a Bank.—Recently the administrators of one Elisha Harris, deceased, late a resident of Luzerne County, Penn., offered his effects at public sale, among them an uncouth block of wood, supposed to be part of a cheese press, and which was purchased for fifteen cents, by one David M. Hatmacher. On the morning succeeding the sale, the purchaser in a spirit of inquiry "characteristic of the age we live in" split the block open, when he discovered a queer secret door, opened by the pressure of a long rod, and containing bonds, notes and other matters, besides about $2,000 in silver coin. To test the right of ownership in the treasure, an amicable suit for its recovery was instituted in the Common Pleas of Luzerne County, resulting in a verdict for the executors for $1,000.

Supers Hall Storms in this State.—A hall form passed over Wellsville on Monday. Many of the stones were as large as a pigeon's egg, while others, with jagged points, were as large as a small hen's egg.

A severe hall storm visited Akron on the same day. The hall-stones that fall were of the size of large pess, but toward the end of the shower they tell as large as hickory-nuts. As there was no wind at the time but little damage was probably done. The storm lasted about ten minutes.

Singutar and Fatal. Accident.—A boat driver, Austin Billings, was killed on the tow-path in Syracuse, N. Y., recently, by being struck by a whifetree. The team studdenly started up, when, the traces of the harness breaking, the whifetree was drawn back by the spring of the tow-line, and struck the unfortunate lad in the bowels. Validity or Marriages is Maryland,—Judge Crain, in a recent suit before the Circuit Court of Charles County, Md., decided that a license was not necessary to the validity of a marriage in that State—that it fir a civil contract, and, by the common law, binding, if established by evidence that it had been entered into by the parties, to operate as a marriage and followed by cohabitation.

The Frize Ring cayers and Homas to Visit This Country Tog ther. The Best-cla Boy's Challenge to Marrissey.

This week's Spirit of the Times observes:

Among the first fruits of the settlement of the dispute about the belt is the laying out of two campaigns by the champions, from which they will, no doubt, reap a golden harvest. We learn that after a tour of eight weeks in England and Ireland, in the course of which they will give exhibitions in the principal towns, Heeuan and Sayers will come to this country together.

The Spirit also contains Heanan's challenge to Morrissey, dated London, May 22, which runs thus:

The Spirit also contains Heenan's challenge to Morrissay, dated London, May 22, which runs thus:

The whole thing is settled at last, so far as Sayers and me are concerned. It is not exactly what I bargained for, but it will serve to prove that I have not done the place I came from any discredit, and that I have got a big crowd of people on this side of the water, who, perhaps, don't like me any too well at that, to give the lie to those at home who still try to defame me with a want of courage. I bear that Morrissey is still foremost in this fine business, but I carnestly hope that none of my friends will interfere with him on that account. He can not do me any harm whatever he says, and so long as that is the case, I want that he should be left for me. I understand that he still publicly says that he will fight me when I come home, and I mean to make him keep his word. Let him commence his preparations, therefore, as soon as he can, and let him get in the best possible fix, for if anything will tempt me to leave this country speedily, and postpone any intentions I may have about the old belt of England, it will be for the satisfaction of meeting him in a rope ring again. I bear the man no malice, but I want to punish him for the way in which he talks about me, and consequently I want him all to myself.

All the satisfaction I have had from him thus far is the two hundred dollars I won from him on his bet that I would not come to England and fight Sayers, and now I want to give him another chance, or to get another chance for myself to win or lose five or ten thousand dollars more. I shall have between five and six thousand dollars a side if he likes, on any day that may be named, after four months' notice. I shall expect him to close with this proposation for a meeting at once, but I will add that if the suns I name are more than will suit his book, I will seconmodate him 'or one thousand or one hundred dollars a side—yes, for one dollar or a ten cent piece! If he crawls out of this after all that he has said

An Incident of the French Revalution—A

Man Owes His Life to His Boots.

Now that the name of Varnhagen von Ense is brought so prominently forward, through the Humboldt correspondence, it may not be amiss to quote from one of his works a story about a pair of boots, which, by their opportune disappearance, did their owner better service than did ever boots before by the promptest attendance. It occurs in the author's account of Crab Schlaberndorf, a writer of no little power, who lived in a Paris garret, was miserly in trifles, and lavishly generous in great things, who was primarily a hearty friend of liberty, and secondarily a persevering, disinterested patriot. A friend of the Girondists, he speedily found his way to prison under the sway of Robespierre.

One morning the death cart came for its usual number of daily victims, and Schla-

One morning the death cart came for its usual number of daily victims, and Schlaberndort's name was called out. He immediately, with the greatest coolness and good humor, prepared for departure. Presence of mind in some shape, a grand stoicism or mere indifference, was common in those terrible times. And Schlaberndorf was not the man to make an ungraceful departure when the unavoidable Must of fate stood sternly before him. He was soon dressed, only his boots were missing. He sought, and sought, and sought, and the jailor sought with him, in this corner and in that; but they were not to be found. "Well," said Schlaberndorf, sharply, "this is too bad; to be guillotined without my boots will never do. Hark ye, my good triend," continued he, with simple good humor, to the jailor, "take me to-morrow; one day makes no difference; it is the man they want, not Tuesday or Wednesday." The jailor agreed.

The wagon, full enough without that one head, went off to its destination. Schlaberndorf remarned in the prison. Next morning, at the usual hour, the vehicle returned; and the victim who had so strangely escaped on the previous day, was ready, boots and all, wasting the word of command. But, behold his name was not heard that day, nor the third day, nor the fourth, and not all. There his name was not heard that day; nor the third day, nor the fourth, and not all. There third day, nor the fourth, and not all. There was no mystery in the matter. It was naturally supposed that he had fallen with the other victims named for the original day. In the multitude of sufferers no one could curiously inquire for an individual. For the days that followed there was enough of victims without him, and so he remained in prison till the fall of Robespierre, when, with so many others, he recovered his liberty. He owed this miraculous escape—not the least strange in the strange history of the Revolution—partly to the kindness of the jailor—partly and mainly to his good temper. He was a universal favorite in the jail. was a universal favorite in the jail.

England's Course Toward China. We find in Bluckwood for May an elab erate article on the course to be pursued to ward China. The writer says: "We have then the vast sum to be realized "We have then the vast sum to be realized by the seizure of all the grain vessels and im-perial granaries of Northern China. Even if only one-half of the yearly supply falls into our hands, the value of those 200,000 tuns of grain at the prices roling recently in Peche-lee would be equal to twenty-four million dollars, or four and three quarter millions sterling. Besides this, there is the govern-ment salt revenue. And, lastly, we can not believe that China is less rich than in 1842, when we remember that since them, sevenment sail revenue. And, lastly, we can not believe that China is less rich than in 1842, when we remember that since then, seventeen years ago, her merchants and her tea and silk farmers have tripled their sales and profits, absorbed our silver as fast as we can pour it into the country; and apart from an increased trade along their coasts, we find the Chinese trader actually, for the first time in history, trading and competing against us in European-built vessels running to the ports of the Eastern Archipelago, as well as between port and port in their huge Empire. This does not look like national bankruptcy—national poverty. The Chinese are the most under-taxed race we know in the East, but they are badly governed, and worse protected by their Government. The Government can exact when it pleases any amount of coin and supplies to erect formidable works, cast brass connon to oppose us, and then plead poverty when we demand indemnity.

Finally, the writer urges the following as proper features of a new Treaty:

"A guarantee against a recurrence of hostilities and gross treachery, though difficult to obtain, is essential. We would suggest that, in the first place, the reconstruction of the Taku forts be objected to; that a position be selected as man the Peiho River as possible for the establishment of an European factory or settlement, the Cousuls exercising within the limits of their respective factories magisterial functions, (the Mes-ton Islands would probably afford such a position;) no fortifications to be erected by Europeans, except in self-defence against the Chinese; and that it shall be considered a neutral spot in European wars. Its proximity to Pekin would check that Court, if it contemplated any further duplicity, it would be a place of refuge for our merchants or diplomatists resident in Pecheles, and the cession of such an island or spot to the allies would have the most marked effect upon the Chinese and Manchous of Northern China—would form a tangible proof of our success, and of the punishment awaiting breaches of treaty-engagements.

Confession of Hicks the Pirate.

Albert W. Hicks, now confined in the New York Tombs under sentence of death for piracy and murder, has made a fill confession of guilt, as stated by telegraph. He mys that the murders were committed between nine and ten o'clock at night, when the vessel was about fifty miles out at sea, and that they were perpetrated with an ax. The brothers Watts were the first killed—one with a single blow, while at the bow of the vessel, the other as he was coming up the companionway after hearing the noise on deck. Captain Burr, who was salesp in the cabin, was next attacked. He fought deeperstely for his life, but being unarmed was unable to successfully defend himself, and was crentually overpowered and murdered. The bodies were thrown overboard in about an hour after the consummation of the tragedy, and Hicks does not believe any of them have ever been recovered. The prisoners say that he derived great assistance from the devil, who, according to his story, was the fifth man on board, and sustained him throughout the bloody tragedy. He complains, however, that he has since deserted him and left him to his fate. Hicks is suspected of having participated in certain murders on board the ship Saladis, but when questioned on the subject he gave as a evasive answer, and remarked that when his life was published all would be known.

Yesterday's St. Louis Republican informs us in regard to the rivers thereabout:

The river at this point is falling at the rate of two inches in twenty-four hours. There is nine feet full in the channel out to Cairo. We learn that the Maria Denning was obliged to pump with all her might to keep the water out of her at Cairo, and had to discharge a large portion of her freight in order to repair sufficiently for her to continue her trip.

The Illinois River is falling with four feet in the channel below Peoris. The Upper Mississippi is riving, with five feet on the Upper Mississippi is riving, with five feet on the Upper and three feet on the Lower Kapids. Below Keokuk there is six feet in the channel. The Missouri River is reported rising from Weston Aowa, with four feet in the channel.

Yesterday's Lonisville Centrier observes.

"The river continues to recede, though slowly, with five feet water in the canal last evening, by the pier-mark. On the falls there was but three feet in the pass. Buring the previous twenty-four hums, the river had fallen two inches at the head of the falls. The weather was clear and rather warm most of the day, though the wind made two or three slight effects in the afternoon to raise another storm."

The Cumberland was again rising Tuesday evening, with five feet water reported on the shoals. It was a head rese from the mountains, and a rise may be a shad reserved to the shoals.
